EXTRA EARTH PROVED FLAT

Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Johnson

Charles K. Johnson who calls himself the last Iconclast has revealed that a band of international criminals, a syndicate of science, a cartel of arch criminals Master of Deceit has almost gained complete control of the USA! Mr. Johnson, the president of Flat Earth (research) Society International of Lancaster California has revealed that detailed, factual practical research conducted by his Research Society has proved beyond any shadow of a doubt that The known world is flat, and is not a planet. He claims his Society has found earth a kind of stretched out plane, that the sun is a small object 32 miles across that moves above the earth, the earth does not move, the sun does and is in fact a light to light the day on this earth, the center of the universe. That the moon is also about 32 miles across, that it does not reflect the light of the sun, but is in fact a light to light the night. giving an all together different kind of light.

No one has been to the moon

Mr. Johnson states the "moon shots" and "space cake walks" Rover Boy's in space etc. etc. including the claimed "celestial marriage in Heaven between US and USSR space ships" were entirely fictional, simulated just as other science fiction movies are. He says the simulated space pictures, faked pictures of earth from the moon, faked pictures of rover bots and thier jeep on the moon were concocted "as they thought it would be" if the superstitions of modern science were true.

Mr. Johnson says he personally knows, Arthur Clark the scriptwriter and science fiction writer who both wrote, directed and narated the first "moon landing" and has in fact layed out the entire "space project" that he knows earth flat and has made available to him long before the faked moon landing. Vast evidence proof of a moon landing was impossible

Projecting Railways

Railways.
In projecting railwayson a globe, the datum line would be the arc of a circle corospondingto the latitude of the place. The datum line for rail- way projections is always a horiz- ontal line, proves that the general configuration of the world is horiz- ontal. To support the globe theory, the gentlemen of the observatories should call upon the surveyor to prove that he allows the necessary amount for“curvature.” But this is what the learned men dare not to do, as it is wellknown that the all- owancefor the supposed curvature is never made. In the session of the British Parliament for 1862, Order No. 44 states:

“That the section be drawn to same horizontal scale as the plan, and to the vertical scale of not less than one inch to every one hundred feet, and shall show the surface of the ground marked on the plan, the intended level of the proposed work, the height of every embankment, and the depth of every cutting, and a datum horizontal line which shall be the same through- out the whole length of the work

In the Bigmingham Weekly Mer- cury, of 15th Feburary,1890, “Sur- veyor” writes as follows:

“ ‘An Engineer of thirty years standing’ wrote to a magazine in 1874 quoting the following sentence as the result of his experience in the construction of railways, more especially:— ‘I am thoroughly acquainted with the theory and pratice of civil engineering. However bigoted some of our professors may be in the theory of surveying according to the prescribed rules, yet it is well known amongst us that such theoretical measurements are incapable of any practical illustration. All our locomotives are designed to run on what may be regarded as true levels or flats. There are, of course, partial inclines or gradients here and there, but they are always accurately defined and must be carefully traversed. But anything approaching to to eight inches in the mile, increasing as the square of the distance, could not be worked by an engine that was ever yet constructed. Taking one station with another all over England and Scotland, it may be stated that all the plat- forms are on the same relative level. The dis- tance between the Eastern and Western coasts of England may be set down as 300 miles. If the prescribed curvature was indeed as repre- sented, the central stations at Rugby or Warwick ought to be close upon three miles higher than a chord drawn from the two ex- tremities. If such was the case there is not a driver or stoker within the kingdom that would be found to take charge of the train ... We can only laugh at those of your readers who seri- ously give us credit for such venturesome exploits, as running trains round srherical curves Hor- izontal curves on leveleare dangerous enough, vertical curves would be a thousand times worse, and with our rolling stock constructed as at present physically impossible. There are severalothe reasons why such locomotion on iron rails would be as impracticable as carrying the trains through the air.’ ”

This important evidence by a pra- tical man, may be supplemented by the following W. Winkler, M.I.C.E., in the Earth Review for October, 1893:

“As an engineer of many years standing, I say that this absurd allowance is only permitted in school books. No engineer would dream of allowing anything of the kind. I have projected many miles of railways and many more of canals and the allowance has not even been thought of, much less allowed for. This allow- ance for curvature means this—that it is 8” for the first rule of the canal, and the increasing at the ratio by the square of the distance in miles; thus a small navigable canal for boats, say 30 miles long, will have, by the above rule an allowance for curvature of 600 feet. Think of that and then please credit engineersas not be- ing quite such fools. Nothing of the sort is al- lowed. I must, however, state that college astronmers have made the student engineer to think that in his method of levelling what is known as the “backsight” cancels any curvature by his “foresight”, and so on. It is only a theory and if astronmers declare that our method of levelling cancels the obligation of making this allowance, we sha’nt quarrel with them—it does no damage to our projects when we get into pratice, but we no more think of allowing 600 feet for a line of 30 miles of railway or canal, than of wasting our time trying to square the circle.”

Astronomers know full well that it is no use appealing to the engineers, as their testimony is dead against the globular theory, although many of them believe in it all the same; but I never met one who said that he never made the allowance said to be necessary for projecting railways on the surface of “our tiny globe.” In “Theoretical Astronomy,” page 46, the author tells us that:

Mr. J. C. Bourne, in his magnificent work called ‘The History of the Great Western Railway’ ...whish is more than 118 miles long.....the whole

Edmund G. Brown Jr. Governor of California has done an outstanding job in Calif- ornia. He is liked, admired and above all, respected by all classes of people in Calif- ornia. He and every phase of his life is known in California from childhood by the people, these qualities he has demonstrated: a sound balanced mind, he is pratical and logical and consistant. He has dedicated his life 24 hours a day to serving this nation. He has no other interests except to develope his spiritual undrestanding. His concept of being a christian is different to Carters, who is a Baptist. Baptists are “washed in the blood” and well qualified to stand at the right hand of God...sins and all. Brown just the reverse, seeks day and night to try to qualify by serving, doing good works...to be a servant, to be like Jesus by deeds, rather than washed in his blood. For the first time in recorded history, he got collective barging rights and dignety to what has been considered throughout recorded history as “beasts of the field” farm workers. For this one thing alone, his name will stand through the ages. If elected he would be available to all classes of people, business and labor, rich and poor and rule “fairly” for he is not self seeking, but seeking... to be our servant.

Remain Level

It is the nature of fluids to be and remain level, and when that level is disturbed by any influence whatever, motion ensues until the level is re- sumed

Professor Airy tells us, in his “Six Lectures on Astromony,” that “quick- silver is perfectly fluid, its surface is perfectly horizontal.” We may add that all fluids are the same, for the reason given by the next writer.

Mr. W. T. Lynn, of the Royal Ob- servatory, Greenwich, in his “First Principles of Natural Philosophy,” says: “the upper surface of a fluid at rest is a horizontal plane. Because if a part of the surface were higher than the rest, those parts of the fluid which were under it would exert a greater pressure upon the surround- ing parts than the receive from them, so that the motion would take place amongst the particles and continue until there were none at a higher level than the rest, that is, until the upper surface of the whole mass of fluid became a horizontal plane.”

The Enflish mechanic of June, 1896, says:

“Since any given body of water must have a level surface, i.e., no one part higher than an- other, and seeing that all our oceans (a few inland seas excepted) are connected together, it follows that they are all virtually of the same level.”

In March, 1870, the Bedford Canal was chosen to experiment upon with a view of determining whether water was horizontal or convex.

The following argument is taken from the report as printed in the Field for 26th March, 1870, and is considered to be sufficient an un- answerable:-

“The stations appeared, to all intents and purposes, equidistant in the field of view, and also in a regular series; first, the distant bridge; secondly, the central signal; and, thirdly, the horizontal cross-hair marking the point of ob- servation; showing that the central disc 13 ft. 4 in. high does not depart from a straight line taken from end to end of the six miles in any way whatever, laterally or vertically. For, if so and (as in the case of the disc 9 ft. 4 in. high) it it were lower or nearer the water, it would ap- pear, as that disc does, nearer to the distant bridge. If it were higher, it would appear in the

Why do you still Sacrifice?

Sacrifices are finnished, as Jesus thought, he personally entered the temple and stopped them. Why do you still sacrifice and kill animals to eat? Why do you profess to follow Jesus when you don’t have compassion on the helpless animals? Why don’t you keep the 10 commandments, stop sinning, sin is the transgression of the law? Why do you get pleasure out of killing the innocent? There is plenty of food to eat, the food you were created to eat. Why must you kill the innocent to satisfy your blood lust? Why don’t you do as the Creator and Jesus told you, perhaps you will find you will not be cursed...with the sickness and disease. But I tell you don’t do it just to “help yourself” try to have a heart of flesh not stone, think of how terrable it is to kill just for your blood lust. To eat him. opposite direction nearer the horizontal cross-hair which marks the point of observation. As the disc 4 ft. lower appears near to the distant bridge, so a disc to be really 5 ft. higher would have to appear still nearer to the horizontal cross-hair of the telescope. And therefore it is shown that a straight line from one point to the other passes through the central point in its course, and that a curved surface of water has not been demonstrated."

In "Theoretical Astronomy," page 47, it is stated:

"On the Royal Observatory wall at Greenwich is a brass plate, which states that a certain horizontal mark is 154 feet above mean water at Greenwich and 155.7 feet above mean water at Liverpool."

The difference of the level between Liverpool and Greenwich is thus shown to be only 1.7 feet. If the world were a globe, the difference of level would be many thousands of feet. It is a common saying that water will find its level, and it is true. If water be damned back, it will, as soon as released, take the easiest course to where it can find its level. The following from Natal Mercury of 24th of October, 1898, fully illustrates this point:

A Mountain of Water.

London, Oct. 19 (diggers' News Special).—The steamer Blanche Rock, whilst entering the Morpeth Dock, Birkenhead, burst the dock gates. The water inside, which was 8 ft. higher than the level of the river, rushed out with tremendous force. The swirling mass of water damaged the shipping, and beached and sank a number of barges. Two lives were lost.

As soon as the water got to the level of the river, its power would cease.

C. Darwin, in his "Voyage of a Naturalist," page 328, tells us:

"I was reminded of the Pampas of Buenos Ayres, by seeing the disc of the rising sun, intersected by an horizon level as that of the ocean."

A globe with level oceans would be a new thing in geography!

All photographs pretending to show a "curved horizon" are faked. A facsimile of the world famous Bedford experiment by DR. Samuel B. Rowbotham on our membership cards. There are thousands of other experiments but only this one was needed to prove once and for all time, earth is not a globe.

Charles K. Johnson the last Iconclast

Copernecious explained in person to Pope Paul 3 exactly how step-by-step he concocted his hypothesis explained that it was just an exercise in "science fiction" not written to be believed, but for entertainment. No basis of any facts what so ever! Galileo, later a degenerate deceiver, pretended to "believe the fiction was true" and teach others. All records are still available, every Pope from Simon Peter to present must know earth flat. In later issues will be given a table of supposed curve of earth 25,000 miles around, so you can check for yourself and know earth is flat.

Sun Worship

Sun Worship the present day claim the "sun" is the center of our universe, is the same pagan hethen sun worship Israel of Old was warned against and cursed for practicing or "believing"! This demented idea came from India.

Let an observer stand by night directly under a lamp-post: the light above him will cast no side shadow. If he moves northwards his shadow will fall to wards the north; and if he goes south his shadow will fall southwards. If the light were extended by a number of gas jets above his head, say for ten feet, then an observer moving that distance underneath he would still see no shadow. That is, the vertical rays of the light would cast no shadow for a distance equal to its own extent. Now apply this reasoning to the shadows of vertical objects cast by the sun's rays.

In northern latitudes the shadows falls towards the north; and in the southern towards the

Earth is Center of Universe

March 1616 Rome. "They claim this earth is not the center of the universe and that it is a spinning ball, whirling around the sun, is absurd, is scientifically false (proved by practical demonstration to be false) and formally heretical and is expressly contrary to the Holy Scriptures" end of quote. This from the committee of Cardinals called the "Holy Congregation." The Congregation of the Index 1616 Rome.

Moses said the same identical thing, All the Prophets of Israel and also Juda. Jesus said the same identical thing (the hethans in power in Jerusalem believed the same spin-in-ball hoax as to-day). All the Apostles including Simon Johnson, (or Simon son of John, called Simon Peter). Charles Johnson in 1976 says every word on the statement by the Holy Congregation was and is True.

Pope Paul 6th in the Vatican Europe has proved he is a friend and exponent of the truth. He is being crucified to-day by monstrous demented friends of hell athiest spinning ball communist, why? Because he has ruled adultery (masturbation) fornication sodomy and murder of unborn children to be "sin" or transgression of the Divine Law. It is also a proved flat earth fact that these things, when accepted and treated as "legal and right" will and has destroyed all people and nations who have tried it. Therefore, the patricarch called some "Pope" both words mean the same thing, fulfilling the same commission as had Moses and Jesus "has lifted up his voice" and "warned the people".

To those who have ears to hear .. hear...

Both the statements, Holy Congregation 1616 and the quoted ruling of Pope Paul 6th are true. Both are inspired by God's statements and also demonstrated in logical, reasonable proved FACTS.

south. The declination of the sun varies from the tropic of cancer, 23½ degrees N., to an equal declination south of the equator, the tropic of Capricorn. Between these extremes the sun is always, at noon, directly overhead in places with altitudes equal to his declination, the variation in which is the cause of the varying seasons. In these places on land, or at sea, the sun casts no shadow at noon; and it has been found that this phenomenon extends for 32 miles. So that the column of the sun's vertical rays is 32 miles across in every direction—a distance equal to the length of the solar diameter! And whether we take the surface of the sea as curved or horizontal, there would make little difference to the diameter, as may be seen an referring to Fig. 20.

This one proof of the suns size observed by a medical gentleman, Dr. Robertson, with British troops during Boer War.

Moon a piece of Earth?

According to current science the moon was once a piece of molten rock fractured off from the earth, when the earth was in a soft or plastic condition. Its origin is thus stated by Sir R. Ball, in the "Story of the Heavens," page 520:

"There is the gravest reason to believe that the moon was at some very early period, fractured off from the earth, when the earth was in a soft or plastic condition at this epoch the earth rotated 29 times on its axis, while the moon completed one circuit but whether it (the epoch) is to be reckoned in hundreds and thousands of years, in millions of years, or in tens of millions of years, must be left in great degree to conjecture."

Conjecture, in this case, has to choose between hundreds of thousands and tens of millions of years. Ample score one must admit! In the same volume, page 52, the insignificant size of the moon as compared to the stars is set forth:

Every one of the thousands of stars that can be seen with the unaided eye, is enormously larger than our satellite."

In "Wonders of the Sun, Moon, and Stars," the same idea is announced thus:

"The luminary which appears to us next in importance to the sun is the moon, and for practical purposes. It, of course, is so; but, consider from a broad astronomical point of view, the moon is exceedingly insignificant, being the smallest of all the luminaries visible to us with the naked eye. the diameter of the moon is only 2,160 miles."

The moon is said to be a reflector of the sun's light, and to have no light of her own, as the following shows. Sir R. Ball, in his "Story of the Heavens," pages 50 and 56, says:

"The brilliancy of the moon arises solely from the light of the sun which falls on the not self-luminous substance of the moon."

"The sunlight will thus pass over the earth to the moon, and the moon will be illuminated."

The speculation regarding the origin of the "lesser light that rules the night" is in keeping with the other impossible notion concerning the earth being shot off from the sun in remote ages. It is so purely nonsensical that it may well be relegated to oblivion without further ado.

As to size, the moon is next in importance to the sun, if, indeed, she is not quite as large; and many times larger than any star in the heavens, including all the planets ever seen by the eye of man.

Both the distance and size of most of the objects in the heavens may be measured with a high degree of accuracy. It only requires to be known that the object is vertical to a certain part of the world at a certain time, when the observer must take position - which could be ascertained by previous experiment - where the angular distance of the object is 45°. A base line measured from that position to the point at which the object was vertical at the moment of observation, will be the same length as the distance of the object from the earth's surface.

Size, except in the case of very small stars, may be as easily determined. Let the instrument with which the angular distance was taken to be graduated to degrees, minutes and seconds, the minutes and seconds corresponding to miles and sixtieths of miles on the earth's surface.

Having carefully adjusted the instrument, bring the image of the lower limb of the object to be measured down to the horizon, and note the reading on the instrument. Now bring the upper limb in contact with the horizon, and the difference of the reading will be the diameter of the object. It would, of course, require a very finely adjusted instrument, and one graduated to say the one hundredth part of a second to measure some of the smaller stars.

Instead of the diameter of the moon being 2,160 miles, as we are informed by the men of science of to-day, it is, by the above process, found to be about 32 nautical miles in diameter.

Then as to the moon being a non-luminous body, and receiving all its light from the sun, astronomy is as hopelessly wrong as in most other of its fanciful statements.

If the reader has taken notice of reflectors, he will have seen that they are either flat - where angles are involved - or concave, but never convex. A convex surface cannot concentrate and reflect light. But a concave surface does this, hence all reflectors, where angles are involved, are concave. The moon is a globe. It is convex, and therefore cannot reflect light to any extent.

Then, if the moon could reflect the light, it would also reflect the heat of the sun. But we know that moonlight is cold instead of warm. In Noad's "Lectures on Chemistry," it is said:

"The light of the moon, though concentrated by the most powerful burning glass, is incapable of raising the temperature of the most delicate thermometer."

"The Lancet" says:

"The moon's rays when concentrated, actually reduce the temperature upon a thermometer more than 8°."

When light and heat are received by a reflector, light and heat are reflected, as the reader may prove for himself, by testing the matter with a petroleum lamp and a reflector.

If a red light be projected on to the surface of a reflector the reflection of it is red. In fine, reflectors reflect just what they receive.

If fish be hung up to dry in the sun, they will be preserved. But if exposed to the moon, will be rendered putrid in one night. The same applies to fruits, &c., clearly providing that the light of the moon cannot be the same nature as that of the sun. And, furthermore, that of the moon shines by its own light. The nearest approach to moonlight is phosphorescent light. And if the moon and stars be observed through a telescope, it will be noticed that starlight and moonlight, except in a few cases, are identical; the size of the star determining its brilliancy, on the principle that the larger the star the greater will its brilliancy be. "Sun, Moon, and Stars," page 57, says:

"That soft silvery light, so unlike sunlight, or gaslight or any other kind of light seen upon the earth."

The theory that moonlight is only reflected sunlight requires that the illuminated part of the moon be always next the sun. Unfortunately for the theory, however, this is not the case.

If the Moon be observed from the last quarter to new, it will be found that for a portion of one day, immediately before new moon, the dark part of the moon is turned towards the sun; and at the new moon the sun is still to the eastward of the moon, which is illuminated on its western surface.

On 10th August, 1898, at Durban, Natal, the moon rose at 1.7 a.m., and by sunrise (6.35) was high in the heavens, showing about half on her eastern surface. On 15th, moon rose 4.58 a.m. (sunrise 6.30), with a very small portion of the eastern limb illuminated, but the whole circle was distinctly visible. On 16th, moon rose 5.32 a.m. (sunrise 6.29) with the dark part towards the sun. On the 17th, moon rose 6.4 a.m. (sunrise 6.28), 24 minutes before the sun. New moon same day 0.35 p.m., the moon's illuminated western limb being turned away from the sun, which was to the eastward. On 18th, moon rose 6.36 a.m. (sunrise 6.27), and the sun was thus ahead of the moon, and on the illuminated side, having passed her between the hours of sunset on the 17th and sunrise on the 18th. Any one who cares to take the time and make the necessary observations, may satisfy himself on this point. The almanac shows that at every new moon, the sun is to the east of the moon, which is illuminated on her western surface, clearly providing that the moon is a selfluminous body, and not a reflector of sunlight.

But how about the "phases" of the moon, if she is selfluminous? If the moon be observed it will be apparent that she rotates from west to east in order to produce the various phases, each phase appearing in spite of the position of the sun. This shows that she is luminous on half her surface, the dark half being towards us when she is invisible.

Take a wooden ball and rub its surface with a solution of phosphorous an olive oil. Place the ball in a dark room, and cause it to rotate, and in all phases, representing the moon will be manifested.

It is that the moon has been photographed and that extinct volcanoes, dry watercourses, &c., have been found on its surface. The places where seas once were, alleged, have not only been photographed, but named, and thus there is nothing wanting to show that the moon was once inhabited - a world like ours.

We know that "poets are licensed to lie," but astronomers who claim that their science is the most exact of any, and admits of demonstration, should be careful to speak the truth, surely. How then are photos of the moon obtained? Sir R. Ball shall tell us. In "The Story of the Heavens," note on page 62, says:

This sketch has been copied by permission from the very beautiful view in Messrs. Nasmyth and Carpenter's book So have also the other illustrations of the lunar scenery in Plates 7, 8, 9. The photographs were obtained by Mr. Nasmyth from models carefully constructed by him to illustrate the features of the moon."

So you see from the first advent of photography the CSS has constructed models and photographed them. This example is from the 19th century, NASA is still at the same fraud, present space moon program photos are obtained the same way, 1976! As the Frenchman said "the more things are different the more they are the same."

line with the exception of the inclined planes, may be regarded practically as level."

One hundred and eighteen miles of level railway and yet the surface of which it is projected a globe? Impossible. It can not be.

Early in 1898 I met Mr. Hughes, chief of the steamer "City of Lincoln." This gentleman told me he had projected thousands of miles of level railway in South America, and never heard of any allowance for curvature being made. On one occasion he surveyed over one thousand miles of railway which was a perfect straight line all the way. It is well known that in Argentine Republic and other parts of South America, there are railways thousands of miles long without curve or gradient. In the "Cruise of the Falcon," by that intrepid traveller and navigator, E. F. Knight, it is stated in vol. 2, pages 1 and 2:

"From Tucuman to Cordova we were carried by the Government railway." "There are no curves on the way, the rails being carried in one perfectly straight line across the level plains."

In projecting railways, the world is acknowledged to be a plane, and if it were a globe the rules of projection have yet to be discovered. Level railways prove a level world, to the utter confusion of the globular school of impractical men with high salaries and little brains.

The news media diverts people into thinking some vague things called the Mafia and Costa Nostra are the villains of the U.S.A. The fact is these are the "good guys" compared to CSS don't cost the taxpayer anything. The CSS or criminal science syndicate costs thousands of billions plus making "suckers" of the entire USA, creating mindless robots, unable to even know "which way is up"!!!
